Of Darkness And Light Tour

Gleich drei Bands aus dem Pelagic-Stall tourten in diesem Herbst gemeinsam durch Europa. Interessanterweise waren es allesamt Formationen, die nur wenig Gemeinsamkeiten mit dem ansonsten so typischen Post-Metal-Sound des Berliner Labels hatten: Die schwedische Sängerin Karin Park, die mit ihren Solo-Alben vorwiegend im Electroclash zu verorten ist, der US-Amerikanische Singer/Songwriter Evan Patterson mit seinem experimentellen Solo-Projekt Jaye Jyle sowie das norwegische Noise-Rock-Ensemble Årabrot. Dass diese drei Formationen auch in Nilvange, einem Vorort des lothringischen Thionville haltmachten war dabei ein Glücksfall. Denn das ehemalige Hallenbad ist bekannt für seine gute Akustik.

Karin Park

Versatile and Electrifying

In the current “Of Darkness And Light Tour” of Årabrot, Karin Park, the captivating Swedish-Norwegian singer, songwriter, and producer, enchanted us with a compelling set that skillfully blended tones of dark wave, synthpop, dark pop, and indietronica. Her unparalleled voice, initially melancholic and serene, evolved throughout the set, charging with energy and transforming into a genuine electronic party that encouraged everyone to move to the rhythm of her music.

Musical Autumn

Jaye Jayle, led solely by Evan Patterson, graced Nilvange with a concert that I would describe as distinctly autumnal. As part of the European tour alongside Årabrot and Karin Park, the show unfolded like a melodic tapestry, weaving together dark and melancholic elements, while also embracing the nuances of dark wave and post-punk that enveloped the entire venue. Singer/Songwriter Evan Patterson‘s solo performance showcased his musical prowess where the autumnal vibes were palpable, resonating through the rich and layered tones that echoed through the venue.

Årabrot

Unleashing the Raw Power of Dirty and Ugly Rock

In the musical universe, Årabrot proudly define their sound as ‘dirty and ugly rock.’ However, in reality, it was a beautifully crafted invitation to immerse yourself in their music fully. Their performance was a fusion of magnificent blends, weaving elements of noise rock, post-punk, and doom metal, with subtle nuances of dark wave and electroclash, all tinged with industrial touches.

From the moment Årabrot steped onto the stage, they saturatet the atmosphere with an electric charge. The ambiance transformed, and every fiber of your being prepared for a surge of energy delivered through their music. Even for those listening to them for the first time, resisting their powerful hypnotic sounds was a futile effort, especially when propelled by the imposing rhythm of the drums and the piercing notes of the guitar.
